

Welcome To Title I

WHAT is Title I?

Title I is the largest federal aid program in our schools. Title I provides additional resources and instruction to improve the educational performance of low achieving children in high poverty schools. Its goal is to help those children meet challenging state academic content and performance standards.

What is a targeted assistance school?

A “regular” or targeted assistance Title I school is one in which services are provided to a select group of students targeted as failing or most at risk of failing to meet the state’s academic standards. Students are selected using multiple criteria and services can be delivered through one-on-one tutoring, small group instruction, after school programs, and/or pull-out settings.

What is a schoolwide program school?

A schoolwide program school has a poverty level greater than 40% and a goal of helping all students in the school. A comprehensive needs assessment and a year of planning is necessary to establish a schoolwide plan that will lead to improving the overall instructional program of a school. The “co-teaching” model may be used in a schoolwide program. Under this system, Title I and classroom teachers make mutual decisions about who will provide direct instruction to whom. Some children may receive more in-depth services, such as Reading Recovery or one-on-one tutoring.

How can I find out if my school is a targeted assistance or a schoolwide program? Just ask your principal, family liaison or call the Title I Office.

What is an accountable education system”?

The "No Child Left Behind" Act of 2001 requires that all states will create learning standards for all grades and that annual assessments will be made of student progress towards those standards. In Massachusetts, the learning standards have been set by the Department of Education Curriculum Frameworks. The assessment of student progress towards these standards is done through the administration of the MCAS (Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System). In Cambridge, the Cambridge Public Schools Curriculum Guides are aligned to the Massachusetts Curriculum Frameworks. In addition to MCAS, the Cambridge Public Schools uses periodic tests, running records and benchmark books to assess student progress toward standards.

Under NCLB, parents have the power and right to:

- ❖ Know your child’s teachers’ and paraprofessionals’ qualifications to ensure that your child is being taught by those who are certified and highly qualified in their subject matter.
- ❖ Know the status of your child’s school, whether it is achieving adequate yearly progress (AYP), is in need of improvement, or is in corrective action/restructuring.
- ❖ Receive timely information on Title I, school performance reports, student assessment results, and other relevant information in a parent’s native language.
- ❖ Help create and/or review the school’s Title I plan and program evaluation.
- ❖ Get more involved! Title I monies earmarked for parent involvement go directly to the schools. Parents have the right to help determine how that money is used. Schools must build parental capacity!

Family Involvement

Parents have certain responsibilities under the “No Child Left Behind Act”, and play an important role in helping raise student achievement.

What is a home-school compact?

Schools that receive Title I funds must work with parents to create a “home-school compact,” specific to their child’s academic needs. Compacts outline how the school, family, and child will share responsibilities for raising achievement. Teachers benefit when families support education at home. Families benefit by having teachers officially recognize the importance of their roles in educating their students. Students benefit when families and schools establish a partnership dedicated to helping them be successful students. Parental responsibilities could range from helping with homework, attending parent-teacher conferences, to making decisions relevant to their child’s education.
